- ▶ Tomorrow we are going to write our diary but today we are going to start planning.
- ▶ We will be writing in role.
- ▶ What does writing in role mean?
Writing as if we are that person.

So we will be pretending to be Oliver Twist.

- ▶ Our diary will be written about the day when Oliver gets thrown out of the workhouse for asking for more gruel.

WAGOLL

Dear diary,

Today was the worst day ever! I can't believe how awful it has been.

When I woke up I was hit by the blinding hot sun that was slicing through the barred windows onto my pillow. I got dressed into my dirty top and scruffy clothes that are too small for a boy my age. I sleepily, slowly and hungrily walked down the cold stairs to the cavernous grey hall for some horrible gruel. I was starving I could devour the whole pot. I decided to ask the fat cruel master for some more disgusting gruel. Everybody was praying for the master to give me more but I was anxious that he wouldn't. I was slowly walking to the front and my hands were trembling with fear. When I asked the master for more he went crimson red I thought he was about to explode. He was so angry I was thrown out of the workhouse.

Will I be ok? How will I survive? What do I do now?

Oliver

1. Waking up.
2. Went to the food hall.
3. Asked for more food.
4. Thrown out of the workhouse.

On this comic strip plan your sections of your diary.

Start with you waking up.

Draw pictures of what is going to happen in the top box. In the box below either write adjectives to describe how he feels or what he can see, or, write in full sentences about what is happening.

Add as much detail so when you write your diaries this will help.
